Re: Ray O. Gertsch

Dear Dr. Green:

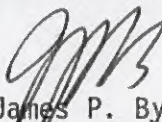

Mr. Gertsch was in the office today approximately two weeks after discharge from the hospital following double aorto-coronary bypass grafts to his left anterior descending and first diagonal coronary arteries on 2-28-78. He has been doing well at home with no recurrence of chest pain. However, his activity has been limited.

On examination today, his blood pressure is 120/80. His chest is clear. Cardiac rhythm is regular at 85. I hear no murmurs or rubs. His incisions are well healed.

I advised Mr. Gertsch that he could gradually increase his activity and he should start to walk. I advised him also to get back to you for further supervision of his day-to-day activities.

We appreciate very much the opportunity to participate in his care.

Sincerely yours,

James P. Byrne, M.D.
